

Woman in Murder Case Now Guarded By Solicitor's Men

Has Not Been Placed in Tower, Because She Has a Small Child Who Needs Her Care.

CLAUDE MARTIN GIVEN GRILLING BY BOYKIN

Officials Say That He Has Not Yet Been Able to Explain Possession of Bloody Shirt.

After another severe grilling in the office of Solicitor-General John A. Boykin, by Assistant Solicitor Ed A. Stephens and Special Investigator Plennie Miner, Friday afternoon, Claude Martin was returned to the Fulton county Tower where he has been confined since his arrest Wednesday night in connection with the murder of Homer C. McElreath, road engineer at the Bellwood convict camp, whose mutilated body was found Tuesday morning by a searching party.

It also was stated at the solicitor's office that the "woman of mystery" from whom valuable information was obtained Thursday afternoon was under constant surveillance, and the reason for her not being held at the Tower was because of the fact that she has a young child that needs her attention.

Two Bloody Shirts.

It was also understood that Martin had in his possession two bloody shirts, one of which he explained became blood stained when he had an altercation with a passenger in his taxicab Sunday night. According to information from the solicitor's office, as yet he has made no explanation of the second shirt.

In her story the woman is said to have admitted she had previously attended dances with McElreath and another man whose name is withheld, and that this action on her part resulted in a quarrel between the two men.

She is also said to have admitted that she had an engagement to attend a dance with McElreath Saturday night. The woman is also acquainted with Martin, according to her story to attaches of the solicitor's office.

Spent Night at Home.

Mrs. Maggie Martin, mother of the man under arrest, denied most emphatically that he had arranged to go to a dance and declared that he spent Saturday night at home.

A number of Martin's friends came to the solicitor's office and stated that they knew his whereabouts Sunday, Monday and Tuesday and could furnish good alibi for him.

While authorities continued their investigation Friday, friends of McElreath on duty at Bellwood camp were contributing to a fund to be offered as a reward for the capture of the slayer. Wardens Charles Collier, in charge of the camp contributed $100 to the fund when news of McElreath's death reached him. The amount raised by the dead man's friends probably will reach $500 by Saturday.

Governor Hardwick also will be asked to offer a reward in behalf of the state. State rewards in such cases usually are $500.

Sheriff W. C. Jenkins, of Campbell county, who is in charge of the investigation in his section, returned to Fairburn Thursday after conferring with county policemen and Solicitor Boykin.

While local authorities are aiding in the investigation, it was only out of courtesy, for the slayer, if captured, will be tried in Campbell county.

LITTLE HOPE HELD FOR RECOVERY OF NORTHCLIFFE

London, August 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—The serious tone of the bulletin issued today regarding the condition of Viscount Northcliffe, noted British publisher, give a strong impression that there is little hope for his recovery. While the bulletins are vague concerning the nature of his illness, it is believed to be the result of a breakdown brought on from hard work and excitement.

LEGION OFFERS SERVICES TO CITY IN COAL SHORTAGE

Men and Clubrooms Will Be Placed at Disposal of Those in Charge of Distribution.

ACTION FROM DESIRE TO REDUCE SUFFERING

President Herbert Clay, of State Senate, Principal Speaker at Weekly Luncheon on Friday.

The services of members of the American Legion in Atlanta, and the use of the legion's clubrooms at 141-2 Marietta street, were offered to the city and civic organizations having charge of the coal distribution here during the coming winter, in resolutions adopted at the weekly luncheon of the legion yesterday. The offer was made, according to the resolution, to enable the adequate distribution of the fuel in Atlanta with a minimum of suffering.

It was suggested during the discussion of the resolution that the city would immediately go up that the legion was seeking to break the strike. Fuzzy Woodruff, introducing the resolution, deprecated any such claim.

"I am getting tired of hearing such small talk going around every time the American Legion does anything. And, as a matter of fact, I would be willing to adopt the resolution if for no other purpose than to give some of these pinhead howlers something definite to talk about," said Mr. Woodruff.

"It is possible that some one will say that the legion is trying to break the coal strike. But I want some body to tell me how in the name of reason a sensible distribution of the coal already in Atlanta will affect mining of coal. Why it will have no more effect on the output of coal than my standing here and talking will have on what Senator Clay's senate does the next time it goes into session."

"But if some benighted scatterbrain does take up the cry, then let him. There is no process of logic or reason under the sun by which any such charges can be substantiated. The resolution speaks for itself. It is a serious and definite effort to avert a fuel shortage that is sure to come if the coal in Atlanta is not distributed carefully and economically."

Resolution.

Mr. Woodruff then read the following resolution:

By reason of the pending strike of the miners, a serious coal shortage is inevitable during the coming winter. This will bring about a condition that is bound to cause misery to thousands of Atlanta people.

Therefore, be it resolved by the Atlanta chapter of the American Legion, that the services of the legion are hereby pledged in dealing with the situation, and to that end it is specifically proposed:

First: We pledge the use of a sufficient number of volunteers who will devote their time to the clerical and administrative labor required.

Second: We assure the mayor of the city of Atlanta and his advisers to assist in any plan that may be agreed upon for carrying a rationing plan into successful operation.

Third: We invite cooperation by the civic bodies in Atlanta in furthering this plan.

Fourth: We place at the disposal of whoever is in charge of the distribution of coal, either as a distributing center or as an administrative center for carrying out the above into effect.

Discussion Follows.

After the resolution had been read, adoption moved and seconded, a brief discussion ensued, aimed to establish the exact wording of the resolution. A test call was put to ascertain how many would be willing to devote as much as half a day to carrying it into effect. A number of hands were raised and the resolution was passed unanimously.

President Herbert Clay, of the senate, was a guest of honor at the luncheon, which was in charge of the Coleman Post, Robert C. Stephens, commander. He told the members of the legion that he believed in the purpose of the organization and that he would do everything he could for its success. He told of his own experience as an enlisted man.

There is much the legion can do to build up a sentiment for law enforcement.

COMMITTEE VOTES AGAINST MEASURE UNMASKING KLAN

Officials of Organization Tell Senators Why They Are Opposed to Eliminating Use of Regalia.

IMPERIAL KLOKARD DEFENDS HIS ORDER

Declares If Membership Is Made Known Opponents Will Do Their Best to Ruin All Klansmen.

Reasons why the Ku Klux Klan wishes to keep its membership secret were given to the corporations committee of the senate by klan officials Friday, during its hearing on the anti-unmasking bill. Senators John H. Jones and Russell Snow.

At the end of the hearing the committee voted 6 to 1 to report unfavorably the bill, which would prohibit the public wearing of masks in Georgia. Senator Jones, co-author of the measure, was chairman of the committee and did not vote. Senator Snow cast the lone vote for the bill. Dr. H. W. Evans, imperial kligrapp of the order, explained to the committee the principles of the klan.

"If your principles are what you say they are, then why in heaven's name do you want to keep your membership hidden?" asked Senator Snow. "If I were a member of the order like I'd want the whole world to know it. I'd be ready to shout it from the housetops."

"I'll tell you why," answered Kligrapp Evans. "When you try to inculcate the principles of Americanism you are at once fought by organizations who try to destroy your business and attack your character. When they find out who you are they will boycott you and ruin your business and they fight you under cover. That is why we wish to protect the identity of our members."

Defends Ku Klux Klan.

In a statement made to the committee Imperial Klokard William J. Mahoney denied that the klan had been guilty of any acts of violence, and implied that the order was being made to bear the burdens of offenses committed by parties outside its organization.

Claiming that he could call organization after organization, masked and robed for criminal purposes, he asserted that the Ku Klux Klan is "just as pure in purpose and practice as any organization under God's heaven."

Rev. Caleb A. Ridley, imperial chaplain, opened argument for the klan against the bill. He read a communication from Acting Imperial Wizard Clarke outlining regulations he had promulgated in Georgia. He declared the klan stood for law and order and charged that the intent of the Jones-Snow bill was to uncover the roster of the order, which, he said, "will probably bring on another fight."

Dr. Ridley said there was no order issued from national headquarters unmasking the klan, and that the order applying to Georgia was issued after repeated conferences with Governor Hardwick. He capped the error, asserting that "he swears loudly by the principles of our order, but holds a big stick over us."

Sensor Jones denied that his bill was aimed solely at the klan. He

Opposing Pleas Are Being Made In DuPre Case

Petitions for and Against Commutation Are Being Circulated.

Two sets of petitions, requesting opposite action in the Frank B. DuPre case, Friday were being circulated about the city, one asking the governor and members of the state prison commission to commute the death sentence of the "gray overcoat" bandit to life imprisonment, and the other urging the governor and the commission to disregard sentimental meddling and to strictly enforce the law and uphold the courts.

Attorney H. A. Allen, counsel for the condemned man who last December shot and killed Pinkerton operative Irby Walker, in a "Five Points" jewelry store raid, said that he had nothing to do with the clenchy petitions but adding that he knew of about 15 in circulation.

Women Are Busy.

They are largely being sponsored by women who have become interested in DuPre, and recite the claims that the bandit is a moron, was drunk at the time of the commission of the crime, and was influenced by evil associates.

The other set of petitions was circulated by friends and former business associates.

Asa G. Candler, Sr., Confirms Report He Will Be Married

Will Wed New Orleans Beauty in California

Mrs. Onezima DeBouchel, New Orleans beauty, and Asa G. Candler, Atlanta capitalist, whose wedding will take place in California in the near future.

Atlanta Capitalist and Bride-to-Be Met During Confederate Reunion. Held Here.

Asa G. Candler, president of the Central Bank and Trust corporation, founder of Coca-Cola and reputed to be one of the south's richest men, will soon marry Mrs. Onezima DeBouchel, of Reno, Nev., a member of one of the most prominent and distinguished families of New Orleans, it was definitely learned Friday.

Reports of the approaching marriage, which had been received in Atlanta several days ago, were confirmed Friday by Mr. Candler when informed that dispatches from New Orleans stated that the bride-elect had "announced the engagement."

Mr. Candler and Mrs. DeBouchel met at the last confederate reunion held in Atlanta, according to dispatches received here from New Orleans, and their acquaintance was renewed when they met later in California, several months after Mrs. DeBouchel had received a divorce from Adolph Roquet, with the restoration of her name.

While Mr. Candler would not discuss the plans for the wedding, the New Orleans dispatch quotes Mrs. DeBouchel as saying that the date had not been set, but that the ceremony would take place in San Francisco.

Will Live in Atlanta.

Following an extended honeymoon Mr. Candler and his bride will be at home at his Druid Hills residence.

Mrs. DeBouchel is a descendant of Louisiana's earliest settlers, and is considered one of the most beautiful women of the state. She is said to be very wealthy, her holdings including valuable central business property in New Orleans. For the past two years she has made her home in Reno.

Mrs. DeBouchel was formerly Mrs. Adolph Roquet. Recently she obtained a divorce in Reno, and since that time she has used her maiden name.

The bride-elect has unusual musical accomplishments and is a woman of great culture. She was educated in a convent.

Asa Candler has long been an outstanding figure in Atlanta's financial, social, civic and religious affairs. Except for one term as mayor he has not been involved in politics.

He was born in Villa Rica, Carroll county, on December 30, 1851. In 1870 he apprenticed himself to a Cartersville druggist. In 1873 he came to Atlanta seeking employment. He found it in the drugstore of George J. Howard, who afterward became his partner and later his father-in-law. His wife died in the spring of 1920.

Mr. Candler owned a drug business of his own by 1882, which he conducted until 1890, when he began experimenting with the formula which afterwards became a nationally sold product, "Coca-Cola." It was through the manufacture and sale of the drink that he amassed the Candler fortune.

Met in Atlanta.

New Orleans, La., August 4.—(Special.)—Mrs. Onezima DeBouchel and Asa G. Candler, Sr., met during the last confederate reunion at Atlanta. Mrs. DeBouchel was sponsor for the state of Louisiana, while Mr. Candler was active in making arrangements for the reunion and in entertaining the veterans and members of the sponsor's staff.

What is described as a "casual" acquaintance developed. In the meantime the incompatability of Mrs. DeBouchel and her husband, Adolph Roquet, became apparent and in December, 1920, she went to Reno and in September of the following year was given a decree of divorce, with the restoration of her name.

Mr. Candler and Mrs. DeBouchel renewed their brief friendship when they met in California after the divorce was granted, and it was there that a mutual attraction developed.

Mrs. DeBouchel was active in club,

OPERATORS FRAME PLAN TO REOPEN MINES IN ILLINOIS

Coal Men Advance Proposal for Resumption of Work and Forward It to Miners' Head.

REJECT INVITATION TO CLEVELAND MEET

Under Plan, Would Pay Old Scale Until March 31, 1923—Household Demands Given Priority.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Chicago, August 4.—Illinois coal operators meeting today refused to attend the meeting of union officials and operators called for Cleveland Monday by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, but submitted a proposition to Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois miners' union, which, it accepted would result in reopening of Illinois mines.

"According to and being governed by the request of the president," the proposal to Mr. Farrington said, "we are prepared to at once open our mines for work, paying the wage scale in effect at the expiration of the last contract. And to avoid possible further disruption of coal production this fall and winter when the coal supply will be dangerously short even under the best conditions, we will agree that the old wage scale shall remain effective until March 31, 1923."

The proposals signed by the Illinois Coal Operators' association, the Central Illinois Coal Operators' association and Coal Operators' association of the fifth and ninth districts, suggested that immediately on resumption of operations the matter of the Illinois wages and working conditions be submitted to a board of arbitration. No member is to be an operator or a miner.

Would Be Binding.

The findings of the board, according to the proposal, would be binding and would constitute the wage basis for a period of two years from April 1, 1923.

The letter to President Lewis refusing to attend the Cleveland conference asserted Mr. Lewis had called two such meetings and the Illinois operators accepted invitations but both were later abandoned.

HARDING TO WITHHOLD NAMING OF BOARD.

Washington, August 4.—President Harding probably will withhold appointment of a special commission to effect a settlement of the coal strike until after the conference in Cleveland Monday of miners and operators from the central competitive field, it was indicated tonight.

Considerable importance was understood to be attached by the administration to the outcome of the Cleveland conference in relation of the national fuel situation and it was thought no move would be made by the government toward putting an end to the controversy until the outcome of the Cleveland conference was made known.

Congressional participation in the coal dispute also will await results of the Cleveland meeting, officials believed. Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, was with the president and discussed his proposed bill to authorize the chief executive to appoint a federal commission to arbitrate a mine disagreement. A decision was reached not to introduce the measure into the senate until next week.

HOUSEHOLD DEMANDS ARE GIVEN PRIORITY.

Washington, August 4.—Bituminous coal for household use and for manufacture of foodstuffs, medicines and containers for foodstuffs and medicines was given priority status by interstate commerce commission orders today which amended the original orders declaring an emergency in transportation. Household coal will be supplied immediately after public utilities, railroads and governmental demands and after coal mined for shipment to the northwest. Coal for the manufacture of foods and medicines will be placed in class four and therefore entitled to railroad service before coal for other purposes than those designated.

In addition, the commission announced that beginning Monday, August 7, it would have its agents stationed in central points in non-union coal districts to direct car service to mines as follows:

S. J. Mayhew, Thurmond, W. Va.; B. S. Robertson, Bluefield, W. Va.; C. C. Sample, Huntington, W. Va.; W. L. Barry, Horton, Va.; C. R. Heynolds, Knoxville, Tenn.; H. M. Priest, Louisville, Ky.; and J. B. Ford, Birmingham, Ala.

Mystery Death.

Waycross, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—The body of an unidentified negro man was found in the Satilla river near Walthersburg by Mr. Powell, while fishing near the old pig-nic grounds, several hundred yards from the river bridge. The manner in which the negro met his death remains a mystery, but a broken right arm and other dislocated limbs indicated violence.

"Big Four" May Join In Rail Strike, Warn Brotherhood Chiefs

BRUNSWICK PLANS ROYAL GOOD TIME FOR LEGISLATORS

Arrangements Started on Friday for Completing Entertainment Plans for Next Week.

CHANGES ARE FAVORED IN STATE RAIL BOARD

House and Senate Adjourn at 1 O'Clock Friday and Most of Members Leave for Homes.

With the acceptance by the legislature of Brunswick's invitation to that body to inspect the Brunswick port Saturday and Sunday, August 12 and 13, arrangements were made Friday for completing entertainment plans, it was announced Friday by Representative Mann, of Glynn, and Fred Ward, of Brunswick. One of the features of the program will be a boat ride from Brunswick to St. Mary's, including a luncheon on St. Mary's, according to tentative plans. Brunswick is preparing to entertain the members of the assembly on a lavish scale, according to the announcement.

Announcement of Brunswick's plans and the passage of a bill changing the name of the state railroad commission, reducing the membership of that body and changing its methods of operation, were outstanding features of the Friday session. Both the house and senate adjourned at 1 o'clock Friday. The senate will reconvene at 11 o'clock Monday and the house will convene at 9 o'clock Monday morning. Virtually all the members of both houses left Atlanta Friday afternoon and night to spend the weekend at home.

Tax Bills Introduced.

Another important development Friday in the house was the introduction of supplementary tax bills which will impose taxes on soft drinks and luxuries. The bill was prepared by a sub-committee which was named last week to examine the provisions of the Golube-Bird bill on luxuries introduced in both houses.

The bill making sweeping changes in the railroad commission is known as the Brantley bill and was passed after several amendments were added to it. One amendment provides the membership shall be cut from five to three members and the cut is effective with the end of the terms of Chairman C. M. Candler and James A. Perry. If passed this would virtually remove these two members at the end of their terms. Mr. Candler is not a candidate for re-election and the bill would have no effect on him but Mr. Perry is a candidate and has been conducting a campaign for re-election for nearly a year.

Amendments making the reduction in membership include John T. Boileau and James D. Price in one pair and Paul B. Trammell and James D. Price in another pair was defeated. The amendment including Candler and Perry was defeated.

Registration Lists Remain Open Monday

Announcement Is Made by Chairman of City Executive Committee.

Registration books for the city primary September 6, will remain open until Monday evening at 5 o'clock, according to a statement made Friday night by John B. Haunson, chairman of the city democratic executive committee.

W. S. Richardson, tax collector and official registrar, declared that he was willing to abide by the decision of the city executive committee, and that he would be glad to assist the committee in any way he could. The rules of the committee require the registration books to remain open until thirty days before the primary date. As the date for closing falls this year on Sunday some question arose as to whether books would close Saturday or Monday.

The city executive committee declared that under the circumstances the books would remain open until Monday. Anybody who has not registered by the city election can qualify by registering with Mr. Richardson, first floor of the courthouse, before Monday evening.

Those registering since May 6 on this year are not eligible to vote in

Warning by Brotherhood Leaders Follows Conference in Washington. Telegram Sent President

DEFECTIVE EQUIPMENT MAY EXTEND STRIKE

"Big Four" Men Also Object to Armed Guards. Union Men Told to Seek Conference.

Cleveland, Ohio, August 4.—Members of the "Big Four" railroad brotherhoods—engineers, conductors, firemen, engineers and trainmen—may be drawn into the railroad strike if conditions continue as at present.

This warning has been given to President Harding by chiefs of the brotherhoods, following a conference here Friday.

The legislative representatives of the brotherhoods in Washington were instructed in a telegram to call on the president to urge him to renew efforts to bring an end to the strike. They were told to inform the president that use of defective equipment and the presence of armed guards might cause the brotherhood men to join the shopmen.

At the same time, a telegram was addressed to the president, informing him that the legislative agents had been instructed to seek a conference, and that the strike is "daily developing into a more serious situation."

Fear Present Conditions.

"We fear that a continuation of these (present) conditions will inevitably result in our members, as a matter of self-protection, being drawn into the controversy," said the telegram to the legislative representatives.

The telegrams were signed by Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; David B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers; and W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. S. E. Sheppard, president of the order of Railway Conductors, was at his headquarters in Cedar Rapids.

The telegram to the president follows:

"The undersigned have this day wired our national legislative representatives at Washington instructing them to request a conference with you for the purpose of presenting to you our views in connection with the present strike of railroad shop crafts which is daily developing into a more serious situation.

(Signed)

"STONE-ROBERTSON-LEE."

Instructions to the brotherhood legislative representatives at Washington were:

"H. E. Willis, Arthur J. Lovell, W. N. Dusk, 101 B Street, S. E., Washington, D. C.: Complaints in increasing numbers are pouring into our respective offices against demands that our men take out locomotives and equipment which are in a dangerous and unsafe condition, in violation of safety statutes and rules which have been enacted for the protection of the lives and property of the public, and of assaults on and insults to our members by armed guards that are placed on the various railroad properties.

"Up to this time, by constant urging of a neutral attitude, fidelity to their contracts and in the interest of public peace and safety, we have prevailed on our members to continue at their posts.

Situation Hard to Handle.

"Constant aggravation of the above conditions, and the refusal of the railroad executives to accept the proposals of the president for a compromise settlement of pending questions are making the situation infinitely more difficult to handle. The plain intention of the railroad executives to smash the shopcraft unions is resulting in more and more of the locomotives and equipment getting into disrepair, and the dangers of a more disastrous occupation are being daily increased.

CAMPBELL DEFEAT BLOW TO OLD LINE

Constitution Bureau,
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, August 4.—(By Constitution Bureau Wire)—Defeat of Representative Philip Campbell in the republican primary of Kansas recently is looked upon as another reverse for the old-line organization.

Representative Campbell, chairman of the all-important house rules committee, was considered one of the chief spokesmen of the Harding administration in the lower branch of congress. By virtue of his office he was greatly instrumental in shaping and expediting legislation sponsored by the party in power.

He was considered a strong candidate for the office of speaker of the next house, in the event the republicans held a majority, having the support of the farm bloc, it is understood.

Campbell's defeat, coming after twenty years of service, leaves another important legislative office of congress to be filled. Already through voluntary retirements and defeat enough changes have been assured in congress to effect new leadership for the next session. On the house side, such members as Representative Mondell, republican floor leader; Representative Fordney, chairman of the ways and means committee—regarded as the most powerful committee of the house, and the veteran Joe Cannon, all republicans, will retire after having been in harness for a number of years.

Situation Accentuated.

This situation has been accentuated by the defeat of Chairman Campbell together with the retirement, voluntary or otherwise, of Representative Kelley, Representative Foss, Ohio; Green, Vermont; Rodenburg, Illinois; Reavis, Nebraska; Copley, Illinois, and several others of lesser importance, all of whom are assured of non-participation in the November elections.

Representative Mondell withdrew from the house to become a candidate for the United States senate in his state, which is also true of Green, Kelley and Foss. Chairman Fordney, joint author of the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill, is not a candidate to succeed himself, declaring that his ambition along political lines has been satisfied, and that he has acquired all the honors he wishes.

Joe Cannon, the father of them all, will retire voluntarily after serving in congress for more than forty years, which is a record unlikely to be beaten for some time. The veteran statesman, although not taking an active part in the affairs in the house in recent years, is still regarded as one of the leaders, and is a source of much comfort to new members who have not learned the complicated tactics of parliamentary procedure. He will be particularly missed by this element.

Similar Situation.

On the senate wing of the capital a similar situation prevails. Senator McCumber, defeated recently in the republican primary of North Dakota, will leave vacant the chairmanship of the finance committee from which the tariff and bonus bills emanated.

The recent defeat of Senator Harry New, Indiana, will also remove one of the administration leaders from the upper branch of the legislature. Senator's presence, however, is expected to be conspicuous around the capital for some time, as clock-room gossip has it that he will be elected to a cabinet position upon the expiration of his term—probably the postoffice department.

Theodus of leaders of the senate will not be confined to the republican party. Senator Williams, Mississippi, one of the picturesque characters of that body, a one of the recognized minority leaders, will voluntarily retire from service this year. This step will be taken also by Senator Myers, Montana. Both members declare nothing can induce them to seek office again.

New Faces to Be Seen.

On the whole, then, the next congress will be new faces and new faces adorned the seats of the mighty. New faces and a new leadership will mark the exit of that body, a ghost of the 68th congress, effecting a change which a year ago might have been considered nothing short of a fancy.

The death of Penrose, former chairman of the finance committee; Knox, another brilliant Pennsylvanian; the retirement of Kenyon, of Iowa, some months ago to accept a federal judgeship, and the retirement of those mentioned, have acted to make the "most august body in the world" a ghost of its former self. All of which has created a keen speculation over the affairs of the next congress, which will be watched to perceive if possible some evolution from the present method of accomplishing things.

HARDWICK GAINING IN SOUTH GEORGIA, DECLARE LETTERS

Reports from many south Georgia counties received at campaign headquarters of Governor Thomas W. Hardwick in the Candler building Friday indicate that the governor is gaining ground, it was announced by Arthur Lucas, campaign manager.

George C. Smith, of Brunswick, and Judges Charles L. Barrett, of Macon, in letters addressed to the governor assured him of a sweeping victory in their respective sections.

A letter from H. P. Delapierre, of Jackson county, also stated that county to be solid for the governor.

The governor will speak to an assemblage in Tucker, DeKalb county, Saturday, it was announced.

Reception rooms for friends of Governor Hardwick were opened Friday in the Kimball house.

BERRY ALUMNI WILL MEET IN B'RINGHAM

A chapter of the Berry Schools Alumni club will be organized in Birmingham on Saturday when a group of graduates and former students of that prominent Georgia institution met at the Y. M. C. A. in that city.

The organization in Birmingham follows that of one in Atlanta and one in each of several north Georgia counties. Gordon Keown, the president of Berry Alumni association, sent out a call for this meeting to every graduate or former student who lives in the state of Alabama. This group numbers over one hundred and thirty, of which about thirty reside in Birmingham.

Charles Anderson, president of the Atlanta Berry Alumni club will send a representative to meet with the Birmingham chapter.

Seek "Bad Man."

Moultrie, Ga., August 4.—(Special.) Judge W. E. Thomas, of the southern circuit, has issued an order directing the sheriff and his deputies to make a diligent effort to arrest U. S. Allison, known in police circles as a "bad man," who fled after learning that the grand jury had returned three indictments against him in connection with a fight here a few weeks ago.

Five former governors will sit as delegates in the next state republican convention in Iowa.

LAWYERS OF SUCCESS GIVEN IN LECTURE BY JUDGE FOSTER

"The Law of Success," the fifth of Judge William A. Foster's series of lectures on applied psychology, was presented to a highly interested audience Friday night in Cable hall. What was to have been the concluding lecture of the series, "The Secret of Happiness," will be given tonight as per schedule, but in response to a number of requests, the judge has consented to give an additional lecture Sunday evening. Both lectures will begin promptly at 8 o'clock and admission is free to the public.

In his lecture last night he declared that wrong thinking was responsible for the majority of failures. The right attitude toward ourselves and the outside world, he asserted, was the keynote to success for both individuals and business firms.

In closing his lecture, he informed his audience that no one needs to be in poverty. But, of course, he will be, he concluded, "if he persists in entertaining poverty-thoughts. Your wants can all be supplied, but it will be according to your faith."

the state and county elections. Chairman Hanson stated that the registration lists used in the recent charter election had been adopted for use in the city primary and that all citizens eligible to vote in the charter election could participate in the primary. He also stated that the present Kirkwood lists have been adopted. Under the charter amendments passed by the legislature, Kirkwood will become the twelfth ward.

missioners Candler and Perry was adopted by a vote of 66 to 68.

Provisions of Bill.

The Brantley bill provides that fees for the maintenance of the commission shall be paid by railroads and utility companies. The name of the railroad commission is changed to the state public service commission. An appropriation of $47,000 is carried in the measure, this money to be paid from fees assessed against railroads and utilities. The attorney for the railroad commission will be required to serve as representative of the public at all rate hearings and in other litigation where the interests of the people may be affected.

Representative Fowler, of Bibb, introduced an amendment to the commission bill placing ice companies under the jurisdiction of the commission. The amendment was defeated.

A joint resolution providing for the designation by the governor of a fuel commission to handle the fuel situation in Georgia was passed. Under the terms of the resolution the governor is expected to delegate this work to the railroad commission. The bill conforms to a recent request of President Harding that the governor name a commission to handle fuel distribution in Georgia during the strike of the coal miners.

Tax on Luxuries.

The bill providing a tax on luxuries introduced by the subcommittee Friday provides a tax of cent a glass on 5 cent drinks and a similar tax for each 5 cents additional charged for a drink. The amusement tax is fixed at 1 cent on each 10 cent admission charge. Intangible property which includes all evidences of debt such as notes and mortgages is taxed one mill for each $100 face value of the security.

The house postponed debate on the income tax and classification tax until next Tuesday. The tax question in all its details will be threshed out on the floors of both houses in an attempt to frame a measure which will bring sufficient revenue to pay pensions due Confederate soldiers and to provide full maintenance for public schools.

Although the house and senate have accepted the invitation of Brunswick to visit that city next Saturday considerable opposition to making the trip so near the end of the session developed Friday among leaders in both branches. Several leaders explained that the postponement of the last day of the legislature from August 16 to 17 might complicate the situation as far as several important bills are concerned.

Branswick is going ahead with plans for entertaining the assembly according to Representative Mann and others. From all leading organizations of that city are now working out details of the program.

ness associates of Detective Walker. Their documents set forth the admitted guilt of the youth who killed the operative and seriously wounded City Controller B. Graham West, his conviction in every court, and the failure of each of his pleas for new trials. The petitions asked that the governor and the prison commission uphold the arm of the legally constituted courts of Georgia and not to interfere with the justice they have meted out.

DuPre is slated to receive a hearing before the prison commission on August 10, and if his application for mercy is denied, his case will be carried to Governor Hardwick.

Allen's Statement.

When Mr. Allen was told by a Constitution report of the counter-petition, he said:

"I am not surprised that a counter petition should be presented to the prison commission and the governor. I really expected it. The question as to whether this boy ought to hang or be given life imprisonment is one of the most difficult of decisions. The jury who tried him deliberated over this question for a whole night, and the supreme court, composed of six of the greatest lawyers in the state, could not reach a decision. I think there are two of the questions involved, four members of the court holding to the opinion that a new trial should be granted for one reason or another."

"Personally, I sincerely believe this sentence should be commuted to life imprisonment, and from the way the good women, and men, too, as for that matter, are making the petitions which are being circulated in behalf of commutation, I think there are a great many people of this and other cities who share my opinion. From the number of petitions I have been called upon to fill out and furnish to those who have volunteered to circulate them, I am sure that within a day or so we will have at least 10,000 signatures on them."

"I greatly appreciate the interest these good people are taking in this matter, and I very much hope they will keep it up. I have no word of criticism, however, for those who entertain the opinion that the death penalty should be administered; they are, no doubt, just as sincere in their opinions as I and mine."

sheep industry in Wyoming, the home of the third democratic senator. Demand Return Favors.

The republican members of the wool ring not personally and directly interested in the wool industry are associated with the ring only because they demand return favors in the tariff bill and fear political reprisals and such insurgency as might kill the whole measure. This is an index to the method used in drawing up the finance committee bill, it is asserted.

The wool bloc is as follows: Ball and DuPont, of Delaware;

Brandegee and McLean, of Connecticut; Broussard and Hansell, of Louisiana; Bursum, of New Mexico; Candler, of New York; Cameron, of Arizona; Capper and Curtis, of Kansas; Colt, of Rhode Island; France, of Maryland; Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey; Gooding, of Idaho; Hale, of Maine; Harrell, of Oklahoma; Kendrick and Warren, of Wyoming; Keyes and Moses, of New Hampshire; Ladd and McCumber, of North Dakota; Lodge, of Massachusetts; McKinley, of Illinois; McNary and Stanford, of Oregon; New, of Indiana; Newberry, of Michigan; Nicholson and Phipps, of Colorado; Norbeck, of South Dakota; Pepper, of Pennsylvania; Shortridge, of California; Smoot, of Utah, and Spencer, of Missouri.

Has Other Support.

As a rule the bloc can count on support from other senators, and especially from Odell, of Nevada; Ashurst, of Arizona; Jones, of New Mexico; Sheppard, of Texas, and Willis, of Ohio.

Around the wool bloc is organized the whole tariff bill, which will cost American consumers $200,000,000 annually in additional clothing costs, it is estimated. "If the schedules are put through, regardless of the fact that after every political battle following the enactment of a tariff bill the republican party has suffered because of high rates on wool. The only exception was the Dingley bill, but in that case the Spanish-American war was the foremost question."

Senator Gooding, republican, Idaho, who admitted on the floor today that he owned 8,000 sheep, and whose close relatives are understood to be greatly interested in wool, originated the wool schedule. He is the self-styled chairman of the tariff bloc, which proposes to accept all the rates of the finance committee.

Through the Idaho senator a great many of the schedules were presented, and he usually got what he demanded, because he threatened them if they did not. His bluff was not called.

Associated With Dyes.

The wool rate is closely associated with the dye embargo, as was shown when that feature of the tariff came up. When the sugar schedule is reached its further relation will be shown.

Ball, DuPont, and Frelinghuysen are particularly interested in getting a dye embargo. They are members of the wool group. As a result they got support from Gooding and about eighteen more when the dye question was up. It will be reshaped again before the tariff is disposed of.

Moses and Keyes, New Hampshire, are interested because of wool industries in their state. Brandegee and McLean are interested for the same reason. There are also woolen mills in Senator Lodge's state, Massachusetts.

Nicholson and Phipps are interested in the wool schedule to some extent but more interested in the metal schedule. They got wool bloc support for their favorite items. Pepper has a host of items which are favorites with him and for which he has obtained wool bloc support, as has Shortridge of California.

Bursum, Cameron, Capper, Gooding, Kendrick, Ladd, McNary, Norbeck, Smoot, Warren and Willis are primarily interested in duties on wool. They "played ball" on other schedules. The votes of Curtis, Hale, Harrell, McCumber, McKinley, Newberry, Spencer and others are explained by their desire to be "regular," as well as some interest in wool-growing industries in some states.

Senator France, of Maryland, was tremendously interested in one schedule, that relating to plush and velvet manufactures.

He was convinced, possibly by a brother associated with the industry, that heavy protective duties were necessary to that industry.

GAINES AND McALLEY ASK FOR RE-ELECTION

Announcements of W. W. Gaines, president of the board of education, and member from the third ward, and of W. L. McAllely, Jr., of the seventh ward, of their candidacy for re-election, together with the refusal of Councilman Edgar Watkins, of the eighth ward, to become a candidate for mayor, were developments Friday in the city political situation.

Mr. Gaines, in a formal statement, presents his platform, which is based on his record while serving on the board during the last two years. He calls attention to his attitude with regard to the new $4,000,000 school building program for Atlanta and asks that he be allowed to continue in service on the board while the building program is in progress.

"Since I have been on the board," said Mr. Gaines in his formal statement, "I have given largely of my time and thought to the duties of the office. I have been happy to do so because of the interest I have in the good of Atlanta and in the education of her children. I know of no way in which I can serve the city better."

Record of Gaines.

"My record on the board is, I think, well known. I have voted on the board according to my convictions. I can vote no other way. I have tried as well as I can, to represent the schools before the people. I have tried to bring about a spirit of co-operation between the city government and the school department and have done it. I urge upon my friends to allow me to remain and represent their interests for another term."

In announcing his candidacy for re-election Mr. McAllely, who is chairman of the finance and building committee of the board, offers his past record as the platform on which he is running. He has taken an important part in the school building program. He was the first candidate for the board of education to qualify by paying his entrance fee to the chairman of the local democratic executive committee.

Attempts to induce Councilman Watkins to enter the mayoralty race on the part of a large delegation of friends who called upon him in his office failed. The councilman, who was the author of the city manager charter plan, declared he is out of politics for good.

Pays Entrance Fee.

John T. Hancock, well-known business man from the eighth ward, paid his entrance fee for the board of education member from that ward. The decision of Mr. Hancock to enter the race came several days ago at the instigation of many friends.

Candidates to pay their entrance fee Friday included: J. M. Hancock, for board of education; Dr. C. J. Vaughn, for councilman from the fourth ward; W. C. Davis, for alderman from the seventh ward; James L. Mayson, city attorney, and W. P. Anderson, for councilman from the seventh ward. Not a single candidate from the sixth ward paid his entrance fee to date, it was stated.

Four prospective candidates from the ninth ward for councilman to succeed Councilman J. E. Nunn, who has entered the race for mayor, are expected to announce within the next few days, it was rumored around the city hall. They are Ed Bond, Alvin L. Richards, H. M. Matheson and B. E. McGee.

Another report current Friday was that T. F. Cathcart, prominent business man, would announce for alderman from the seventh ward. Mr. Cathcart, who is president of the Cathcart Storage and Transfer company, is said to have the matter pending the race under consideration.

Capitol Gossip

BY PAUL STEVENSON

Much interest was shown by members of the house Friday in the announcement that Judge Harper Hamilton, representative from Floyd county, will be a candidate to fill the unexpired term of the late Judge Ben Hill on the court of appeals bench. It was learned that Judge Hamilton has sent his entrance fee to E. W. Jordan, secretary of the state democratic executive committee, and is now a full-fledged candidate.

In entering the race Judge Hamilton will oppose Judge R. C. Bell, of Cairo, recently appointed by Governor Hardwick as Judge Hill's successor. Judge Charles Whitehead Smith, of Atlanta, also is a candidate while the name of Judge E. F. Walker, senator from the 18th district, has been mentioned in connection with the race.

Heretofore Judge Hamilton has been considered one of the administration leaders in the house and his action in opposing the governor's appointment has caused considerable comment in political circles. Judge Hamilton is one of the most popular members of the house and is a member of the board of appeals bench committee, being chairman of the Western and Atlantic railroad committee.

Asks for Correction

Representative J. S. Cowart, of Calhoun county, one of the most popular members in the house, asked the newspapers Friday to correct a recent error relative to the controversy over moving the county seat of Calhoun county from Morgan to Arlington.

In the reports in the papers it was stated that the house has passed a bill providing for moving the courthouse from Morgan to Arlington by a close vote. Such is not the case. The bill was passed by unanimous vote of the house, not one being cast against it. As a matter of fact this was done following the time-honored custom of passing local legislation introduced by the member from such counties as might be involved.

"Our county by an overwhelming vote agreed to move the courthouse to Arlington. I was elected on that issue and was sent to the legislature to have the vote of the people ratified."

The bill is now in the senate and the senator from our district, who lives in another county, is seeking to hold up the passage of the bill through senatorial courtesy. We do not know what his motive in the case is and he declared before coming to the senate that he would favor the bill the people ratified. In the present case senatorial courtesy is being used in an attempt to frustrate the will of the people registered by solemn ballot.

"We are confident that the senators will join with us in carrying out the verdict of the people of Calhoun county and feel sure that they will not be parties to setting such a dangerous precedent as trying to override the will of the people through the exercise of a technicality such as senatorial courtesy."

Voted Against Repeal.

Representative Toombs DuBois, of Clarke county, also was the victim of a newspaper error during the week. In a report of the vote on the bill to repeal the tax equalization law printed in all-Atlanta newspapers and in all the larger papers of the state Representative DuBois was placed in the list of those voting in favor of the repeal. As a matter of fact he was against the repeal of the bill and voted this way in the house.

J. S. Whitehead, classmate of Representative Bentley, of Fulton, at the University of Georgia visited his old friend Friday. Mr. Whitehead has returned from a three-year stay in Europe where he took a course at Oxford as a Rhodes scholar.

Lankford at Capitol.

Congressman W. C. Lankford, of the 11th Georgia district, was a visitor at the capitol Friday. He called on his brother, Representative G. W. Lankford, of Toombs county, and also visited several other close friends.

Governor Hardwick sent a message to the house and senate Friday urging passage of legislation which will remedy conditions in south Georgia in connection with the enforcement of the cattle dipping law. The message was received as information by both houses.

MONROE FAIR PLANS ARE BEING FORMED

Juliette, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—Under the leadership of County Agent H. L. Worsham, of Forsyth, plans are being perfected for Monroe county's annual fair next fall.

Business houses of Forsyth have contributed a large sum to the premium list and are co-operating with fair officials to make the event a great success. As the farmers extensively diversified this season, unusually fine agricultural exhibits will be arranged and other lines of business will be represented.

BRIDGE CONTRACTS ARE LET AT TIFTON

Tifton, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—The Georgia state highway department has let the contract for a series of three concrete bridges across Little river, three miles west of Tifton, on the Tifton-Omaha-Ty road, and one bridge across a stream east of the river, a total of four in all, to the Vaughn Construction company, of Thomasville, for $22,000. The price includes approaches to the bridges.

The state highway department furnishes the cement. Work is to begin at once and is to be finished by March 15, 1923. Advertisements were sent out yesterday for bids on paving the national highway from Valdosta, south to the Florida line.

SUMMER DIPLOMAS GIVEN AT ATHENS

Athens, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—When Dr. J. S. Stewart, director of the school, handed diplomas to 47 young men and women this evening at the final graduating exercises in the University Octagon, one of the most successful sessions in the entire history of the University of Georgia Summer school came to an end.

The final program was simple and consisted primarily of the invocation by Chancellor David C. Barrow, of the university system; a lecture by Dr. Stewart; the class oration by W. N. Nunn; music by Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Grandberry, and Mrs. G. G. Singleton, and delivery of diplomas, in which in addition to Dr. Stewart, Chancellor Barrow and Dr. A. S. Edwards, both connected with the summer school, participated.

The session just closed has offered to the 2,000 or more students in attending a well-balanced and varied program. Many speakers of note, including Senator W. J. Harris, Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, Dr. M. L. Britton, president of the Georgia Society of Technology; M. L. Duggan, and others, have been in Athens.

While the majority of the students were enrolled in the six weeks course, which concluded this evening, there were nearly 600 others in the eight weeks' work, which will continue through August 10, when there will be a short period, during which there will be no activity on the college campus till September 21, when the regular session of the university begins. Indications are that this will be one of the best in the history of the college, and will find the largest enrollment.

CONVICT WHITE MAN IN ASSAULT TRIAL

Tifton, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—A white man charged with criminal assault upon a negro girl about 14 years old, was sentenced from two to three years in the penitentiary in Worth superior court today. His name is A. P. Cox, and he is 28 or 29 years old, with a wife and several children.

Worth superior court adjourned for the term Friday afternoon after sending the case on to the criminal docket. The grand jury returned 145 bills of indictment and court adjourned, after clearing the jail.

Two Girls, 13, Enjoy Ocean Trip As Stowaways

Cherbourg, August 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—Two young girl stowaways from New York found on the steamship Majestic, enjoyed every minute of their trans-Atlantic trip. When the big White Star liner arrived here today both Anna Muller and Katherine Fleming, the 13-year-old chums, who secreted themselves in one of the Majestic's lifeboats before she sailed last Saturday, declared they had had a merry time.

"The captain is a regular old dear," said Anna, "but the ship's cook—he's the most wonderful man I ever saw."

"Just the same we'll be glad to get home," chimed in Katherine. "I really never dreamed the Atlantic was such a big ocean."

The stowaways will be returned to New York on the next westward trip of the liner.

REPORT IS MADE ON NIGHT FLIGHT ACROSS COUNTRY

Washington, August 4.—An official report of the first cross-country night flight ever made in an airplane from Washington to New York city and return was received today by the war department. The flight took place last night and was made by First Lieutenant Clayton Kienell, army air service.

Officials here regard the flight as of great importance from a military standpoint, it was said, partly because it demonstrated the successful use of the aviators' compass in establishing directions when storm clouds encountered by the aviator made impossible all observation of landmarks. Lieutenant Kienell left Bowling Field, Anacostia, D. C., at 9:50 p. m., after being compelled by storms in the vicinity of Trenton to fly in a round-about route to New York, reached there at 12:30 a. m. today. He left Mitchell Field at 2:15 a. m., and flew a straight compass course on his return journey, which was completed in two hours and ten minutes. The trip was made in a standard DH-4B machine, the report said, the course on the northward flight being via Baltimore, Aberdeen, Wilmington, Philadelphia, Trenton to New York.

Head of the Dooley Family of Vaudeville Entertainers Is Dead

New York, August 4.—Robert Dooley, 62, vaudeville actor and head of the Dooley family of variety head-liners, died today in a hospital of wood alcohol poisoning.

His daughter Ray, and his sons, Gordon and John, are well known for their funny antics behind the footlights. The entire family had attended the marriage of Gordon here this week to Martha Morton. Another son, William, died last September of injuries received in a fall from a taxicab.

The elder Dooley and his wife came here from Ireland about 20 years ago and entered vaudeville.

APPLE OUTPUT HIGH IN MONROE COUNTY

Juliette, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—Production of apples in Monroe county this season is said to be larger than in many years. For the first time in the county's history apples are being shipped this season and all the growers have realized good profits.

L. A. Ponder, one of the largest growers, will gather about 100 bushels. He has already shipped fifty bushels. During the past several years thousands of apple trees have been set out, and this year many young orchards are bearing for the first time.

THOUSANDS FIGHT TO SAVE LANDS IN FOREST FIRES

Spokane, Wash., August 4.—From the Rocky mountains in Montana to the Columbia river in Washington and up to 100 miles from the Canadian border, thousands of men are fighting against forest fires.

The dry, hot weather of the past two months has made the forest condition extremely critical. Lightning has started more fires.

Few reports of persons killed or farms destroyed have been received. At Olympia yesterday, Assistant State Forester Theodore Goodyear said the state of Washington "was practically helpless before the fire menace."

Calls for help, he added, often must go unheeded, with the fire wardens attempting to save what they can, fighting the worst fires and leaving those less dangerous to spend themselves.

Injured by Explosion.

Savannah, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—When a boiler head on the privately operated dredge, the Swan blew out today, three colored workmen were painfully injured. They all are at the Marine hospital here. All of them, it is said, will recover. One, James Green, jumped bodily through a glass window into the Savannah river and escaped with minor injuries.

THANKS TO THE STRIKES.

If the country has been saved from the dangerous consequences of a period of "secondary inflation,"

which many farseeing financiers and business men were predicting scarce six months ago, there is one good thing at least for which we owe thanks to the big strikes of the coal miners and railroad workers.

Things were moving forward so rapidly industrially and financially

that many thought the country was headed for just the dangerous conditions which often follow speedy and drastic deflation. Everyone feelingly recalls what what suddenness and force came the drop in prices when the war-period

inflation had reached its peak.

There was neither a bootblack nor vagrant felt it.

It was only natural that such a fall should be followed by a scrambling to climb back quickly. The business climb gathered momentum and developed speed. Cautious ones thought they saw the clouds gathering anew. Warning signals were displayed. Conservative bankers advised their strongest customers to go slowly in putting out new lines.

Then came the coal strike. That made men think. It didn't check the speed so much, because the season of low fuel consumption was at hand, and accumulated stocks were sufficient to meet industrial needs for some time ahead. But as time went on and there was no abatement in the coal strike situation business conservatism began to get the upper hand. Then came the railroad strike, the effect of which undoubtedly was to complete the work of checking up the industrial speed to a safe and conservative momentum.

The evils of the big strikes, involving widespread public and industrial inconvenience and distress, vast economic waste and probably suffering in thousands of homes, have been numerous and unquestioned. Still there is the old story of the "ill wind."

If these strikes have saved us from the threatened period of secondary inflation and its possible disastrous consequences, who shall say but they have performed a service

perhaps more than counterbalancing the evils for which they have been responsible?

Nobody wholly lost optimism. It would have required greater calamities than rail and coal strikes to have terminated the well-begun national progress toward business development and prosperity.

But something there was that applied the brakes to a speed which seemed to threaten another financial disaster—milder, no doubt, than that so recently experienced, nevertheless most undesirable. There can be little doubt about what that

"something" was.

We may thank the strikes, therefore, on the eve of their settlement,

for toning down the national speed to a safe and conservative limit.

This saner speed rate will bring us

the more quickly to that goal of sure and substantial prosperity which world conditions have placed so easily within our reach.

With the strikes settled and all the country at work, that prosperity will be easy of attainment. And it will not be hampered by another era of industrial orgy and extravagance

such as was feared, a few short months ago, among careful and far-sighted business men.

When you come to think it over,

"moonshine" itself kills ten times more men than are ever damaged in a battle to decide the right to make it.

cal matter in its morning's mail,

"NO MORE WAR."

In various cities throughout the country last Saturday the slogan,

"No More War," was featured by anti-war demonstrations prompted by organizations and societies.

Conspicuous among these societies is the Women's Peace Union of the Western Hemisphere, whose members are pledged "never to aid in or sanction war, offensive or defensive, international or civil, in any way, whether by making or handling munitions, subscribing to war loans, using their labor for the purpose of setting others free from war service, or helping by money or work any relief organization which supports or condones war."

The Women's Peace Union is well-meaning, no doubt, and its purpose unquestionably is praiseworthy; but the course it has mapped out for its members surely leads to serious trouble for them in the event of another war, which they may be powerless to prevent.

During the recent war hundreds of people who acted on such a program went to jail and were justly convicted and very properly committed to the penitentiary for their failure and refusal to meet the primary demands of American citizenship.

And doubtless all who act upon such misguided precept in any future war will likewise go to jail;

because, in its last analysis, what the Women's Peace Union here

proposes borders very closely upon treason.

Any action or organized movement directed against war and calculated to perpetuate peace by removing the causes that occasionally bring on war, is commendable.

But a program that contemplates refusal to support the flag and to defend the country in the event of its becoming involved in war, even though it may be strictly a war of self-defense on its part, is violative of the spirit of patriotism and has no place in the American nation.

What the peace union proposes to do, through its members, is objectionable not only because its tendency would be to embarrass the government in time of war, but also because it would fail to prevent war.

War can not be prevented by the refusal of the people of one nation to participate in war or defend their flag; but only by the eradication of the spirit of war in all nations.

As The New York Globe suggests—

"The error of the peace union is one of tactics. What they propose is a kind of counsel of despair. Their pledge is doomed to be the password of a small and futile minority.

What they should do is to endeavor to work up a majority sentiment, not only against war in the abstract, but against the particular wars that from time to time loom above the horizon. If they believe in democracy they must plan to control the government, not to defy it. In this country and in this generation this should not be impossible. The American people do not want any more

war. They have nothing to gain and everything to lose by war. The time is ripe for persuasion and statesmanship, not for heroics."

Any fight against war must be in time of peace, if it is to be effective, and it must be conducted,

not in opposition to public sentiment—which, in this country, at least, certainly is not in sympathy with the spirit of pacifism in time of war, and it must be conducted,

not in opposition to the government,

but in co-operation with it.

Up the New York way the Volstead agents have directed their activities to the "filling stations" that are too full for utterance.

That new machine which is called a "lie detector" has no terrors for the man who has squared up with the income tax collector—

till next time.

They have been making perfumes out of coal, but Lord help us to keep up the fire with it next winter!

It's "Walk, Walk!" in Chicago;

but when you come to think of it,

a walk a day keeps the doctor away.

Another reason why there was less sex interest in the old days was because people stayed at home once in a while.

One good thing about summer is that it reduces the butter to a state where a butter knife can make a dent in it.

If "jazz," as one critic says, "is dead," it has left a ghost with a kick.

Another disadvantage about obey-ing the traffic laws is that it makes one so conspicuous.

Wonder what a Mexican bandit

leader thinks of an American mob leader.

The country has money to burn,

but may the Lord give it coal!

POLICE NET ELUDED BY NEGRO BURGLAR

Neighbors and pedestrians in the vicinity of 64 Forrest avenue were startled by the sight of a burglar, armed with a shotgun, who was seen to enter a house, and two of these then rushed inside in search of an alleged negro daylight burglar.

They were summoned to the residence of Mrs. John Clifford, 64 Forrest avenue, when two negro servants employed in the house discovered a negro in the act of entering a room on the second floor. The negro servant was seen by the intruder, who made his way quickly to the basement and escaped before the arrival of the police.

The roomers at this address were late in the evening checking over their belongings in an effort to determine whether anything was stolen by the thief before he was frightened away.

The officers answering the call were J. W. Mashburn, Jr., J. G. Bowman, F. A. Newport and W. F. Anderson.

Four negroes are being held at police station, suspected of being implicated in many robberies.

Three of them, Will Lasenby, James Jones and Ross Horton, were taken into custody by City Detectives Carter and Gillespie. They are suspected of burglarizing residences, and it is claimed that the three have been obtained since their arrest that will lead to the recovery of much stolen loot.

The other negro, Oscar Moore, is being held under a blanket charge of suspicion, pending a thorough probe by officers. He was arrested by City Detectives J. E. Austin and H. W. Armstrong.

Motion Picture Director Here Looking for Site For Comedy Scenes

Albert W. Hale, veteran motion picture producer and director, is in Atlanta looking over the city and surrounding country for scenes to be used in a comedy drama, work on which will begin next week, according to Mr. Hale. He stated that he is not yet ready to disclose the interest he is connected with, but he foresees the establishment of studios in Atlanta large enough to accommodate any type of picture production.

Mr. Hale came to this country from Bordeaux, France, his home, at the request of Ringling Brothers to stage their spectacular drama, "The Crusade of Jerusalem," in 1911. He began his career as a motion picture director in 1911, when the industry was in its infancy. His career embraces the directing of 400 pictures and bringing out such stars as Henry B. Walthall, Jack Pickford, "Fatty" Arbuckle and Norma Talmadge, he told a Constitution reporter.

Control Board For University Passes Senate

By the vote of 33 to 13, the senate Friday passed the Cone-Fleming bill substituting a board of control of five members for the present boards of trustees for the University of Georgia and its branches.

Promptly upon its passage Senator Ed Wohlwend served notice that he would move for a reconsideration of the bill. Debate on the measure has lasted three days of the session.

The bill provides that the board shall be appointed by the governor and the board is in turn empowered to name the trustees, the number of which will be cut down 40 per cent. It is said, and has power over distribution of appropriations.

Limit Number of Alumni.
Under an amendment offered by Senator Campbell and adopted, not more than two members of the board can be alumni of the University of Georgia or any of its branches.

The bill also carries the provision that 10 per cent of the total annual revenue of the state exclusive of the motor vehicle tax, must be set aside for the operation and maintenance of the university and its institutions.

The board is empowered to appoint a chancellor of the university and is authorized to name a purchasing agent to make all the food, coal and other purchases.

The board is required to submit at each session of the general assembly a detailed report of the work of the institutions under their control.

An amendment to the bill by Senator Walker calling for the appropriation of 7 per cent of the state's revenue to the university institutions, was killed by the vote of 31 to 12.

Invitation Accepted.
Another feature of the senate session Friday was passage of the house resolution accepting Brunswick's invitation to inspect her port facilities. The invitation carried the provision that at least two-thirds of the members of both houses should make the trip.

Acceptance of the resolution followed brief but sharp skirmish. Senator Fox, of the first district, embracing Savannah, urged that the trip be made.

"I believe Brunswick has delayed the matter unduly," he said, "but I think in fairness to that city we should view the opportunities she has at hand. After the assembly has seen Brunswick's port the members will have no difficulty then reaching a decision."

The proposed trip was warmly opposed by Senator Jackson. "It would be productive of no good," he declared. "We ought to stay here and work. Every time the legislature takes one of these trips the members come back here incapacitated for three days." The senate voted by a large majority to go.

Senator Clay offered a resolution providing for afternoon sessions of the senate, starting next Tuesday. It was referred to the rules committee.

CHURCH STEWARDS ARE PALLBEARERS OF J. R. P. COCHRAN

The funeral of J. R. P. Cochran, prominent local furniture dealer, who died Thursday, was held Friday afternoon. The services were held at Saint Paul's church, Dr. B. F. Fraser and Dr. W. G. Crawley officiating. The stewards of Saint Paul's church acted as pallbearers. Interment was in West View cemetery.

Mr. Cochran had a large following of friends in religious and fraternal circles of the city. For 27 years he was an active member of Saint Paul's church, and served this church as superintendent of the Sunday school for a long time, resigning this position about five years ago.

He is survived by three sons, R. Karl, Paul D., and Frank S. Cochran; two daughters, Mrs. Guy H. Kilgore and Mrs. Ralph E. Wise; one brother, E. A. Cochran, and four grandchildren.

CAMPBELL ASSUMES NEW PULPIT SUNDAY

Dr. Charles Argyle Campbell, former pastor of the Quinlan Presbyterian church, who recently accepted a call from the Druid Hills Presbyterian church, will assume his new duties Sunday. He succeeds Dr. D. M. McIver, who resigned to accept a call from Bishopville, S. C., last January.

Dr. Campbell was born in Scotland but has resided in this country for a long time. His splendid record as a pastor induced the authorities at Oglethorpe university to confer the degree of doctor of divinity upon him last spring. It was during his visit here on that occasion that he preached at the Druid Hills church. His call to the pastorate of that church soon followed.

The Druid Hills Presbyterian church has outgrown its present quarters and is planning to erect a handsome new edifice. It has one of the largest congregations in the city.

JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL WEST END SITE PICKED

Purchase of an eight-acre tract on Beecher, Lawton and Peoples streets, in West End, as a site for the location of a third junior high school, for $50,000, was approved Friday by the board of education.

The property, which fronts 780 feet on Beecher street, 443 feet on Peoples, 580 feet on Lawton street, and 845 on an alley running parallel with Beecher street, is now owned by the estate of Mrs. Sarah H. Conley.

An additional lot 40 by 100 on the north side of Little street, will be purchased for $750, and added to the site already owned by the city, as a location for the Fraser Street school, the board voted.

Announcement was made by Commissioner W. L. McCalley, of the locations of the northeast and northwest junior high schools. The former will be erected upon the Austell property at Euclid and Washita avenues, purchased recently by the board for $22,500, and the latter school will be located on Techwood drive.

PLAN TO ELIMINATE SMOKE IN ATLANTA

A crusade to eliminate soot, smoke and grime from Atlanta's midst and to rigidly enforce the city ordinance prohibiting smoke from flowing indiscriminately from chimneys in the business section, was inaugurated Friday, more than 500 manufacturers, corporations and business houses being enlisted in the drive for a cleaner city.

Howard L. Stillwell, city mechanical engineer, and supervisor of the smoke laws, following a conference with Mayor Key, sent out notices warning heads of concerns in the business district to correct their furnaces so as to eliminate smoke, soot and grime. Unless these notices are adhered to and efforts made to correct defects, Mr. Stillwell stated he would prefer charges against violators.

The mayor and council recently have received innumerable complaints from merchants and others to the effect that the goods have suffered thousands of dollars' worth of damage from smoke and other dirt pouring into their buildings. A fine of $100 or a sentence of 30 days, or both, is provided in the ordinance against violators of the smoke ordinance.

Former Soldier Gets Seven Years For Kidnapping

Eddie Howard, 21, former vocational student at Georgia Tech, was found guilty of kidnapping Minnie Lee Casey, 15-year-old girl of Chattahoochee, Ga., Friday afternoon by a jury in the criminal division of Fulton superior court and was sentenced to serve seven years.

The girl took the witness stand and declared that Howard induced her to go to Macon where she was the victim of a bogus wedding on the sidewalk in front of the home of "Rev. Lankford," after 1 o'clock in the morning, and that she did not know that Howard was already married until after they returned to Atlanta some five days later. After the alleged ceremony the couple went to the Reed hotel and registered as "R. W. Walker and wife," the girl testified.

The Girl's Story.
"Eddie had made love to me several times, had bought a license, which he showed mamma, on June 5, and we were to be married August 20," said the girl. "On June 19 we were going to a dance at my sister-in-law's house, but Eddie got me to ride to Hapeville and then took me to Macon. I thought we were married there. We stayed at the hotel from the 19th until the 24th. I didn't know he had a wife until we got back home."

"When we returned, I went on out home and he came later. We had to get there he found Lieutenant J. M. Carroll, of the county police, with a warrant. Lieutenant Carroll said Eddie already had a wife and baby. It was news to me. He arrested Eddie and locked him in jail. Eddie had fooled me."

"Don't you know he told you at a baseball game one day several months ago he had a wife and don't you know you said you went with married men," asked Attorney L. K. Roan, for the defendant.

"Yes, he said that, but he took it back and said he wasn't married," said Miss Casey.

Defense of Howard.

Howard took the stand in his own defense and denied that he had kidnapped the girl. He declared that the girl knew he was married and had begged him to take her to Macon with him threatening to kill herself if he refused.

"She told me that she was worried at home and that she was afraid her sister, Frances, would take me away from her. The two girls were jealous, and Minnie Lee said she wanted to go to Macon with me."

"There was no marriage, nor pretense of marriage in Macon. We went direct to a hotel where we remained for several days, after which we came back to Atlanta—that's all there was to it."

Howard declared the girl knew he was married, and could not marry her.

"Her parents were perfectly willing for me to visit her—they offered no objection," he added.

R. E. STARNES IS FINED AND HELD FOR CANTON

R. E. ("Bobbie") Starnes, 24, of 88 East Ellis street, alleged bootlegger, was Thursday arraigned in police court under two charges, drawing fines totaling $27.

The cases on which he was tried were made June 4 and July 15, the one in June charging him with being drunk and disorderly, while in July he was arrested for "idling and loitering." He was fined $11 on the former and $16 on the latter charge.

In addition to the fines, Starnes was ordered held for Canton authorities, where it is alleged he forfeited a criminal appearance bond signed by R. P. Jackson. The charge against him in Canton is said to be for violating the prohibition law.

London Stirred By Debt Stand Taken by U. S.

London, August 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—The attitude of the United States treasury department towards the allied debt question indicated by Washington dispatches saying the Balfour note would not affect the American policy towards the payment of war debts, has attracted universal attention here. This, together with the emphatic statement by the chancellor of the exchequer in the house of commons that Great Britain has no intention of suggesting any alteration of financial obligations to the United States, gave a somewhat new direction to this morning's newspaper comment on the question of inter-allied debts.

There was, on the whole, a less anxious note to the editorials. The prospect of next week's conference now tends to overshadow the Balfour note and hope is eagerly expressed that it will lead to some arrangement between the European allies which will avert the ugly menace hanging over the continent through the reparations and cognate questions. Further, it is ventured that the meetings will prepare the economy for a wider conference in which the United States can participate.

Look to Conference.
News dispatches from Paris to the London newspapers today indicate also some increase in hopefulness through France, and the conference which opens here Monday is consequently looked to with growing expectations.

Discussing the agenda of the conference, the diplomatic expert of The Daily Telegraph says the earlier impression that the Balfour note would preclude examination of any project for a broad settlement of the inter-allied debts is no longer widely held, and it is believed that at the very least an explanation of this problem will be essayed.

The supposed division of opinion in the cabinet regarding the British policy toward the debt problem seems responsible for another revival of the report that Prime Minister Lloyd George contemplates an early election. It is stated that, if the conference yields nothing of value and conditions drift from bad to worse the premier is likely to resort to the dissolution of parliament, with an election in the autumn.

The Star, advanced liberal newspaper, yesterday asked editorially whether the critics of the arguments set forth by the Earl of Balfour in his note thought that the British were going to work twenty-five years to repay the United States, while the other allies repaid nothing.

Another incident which is taken as a straw indicating the change in the political wind was an important private meeting of unionists under the presidency of Austen Chamberlain, held last night to consider the growing desire for the independence of the unionist party.

GRADY AMBULANCE SUBSTATIONS URGED

A movement toward the establishment of a system of ambulance substations at widely separated points of the city as a part of Grady hospital was begun Friday at the weekly luncheon of the Civitan club, when it was voted to authorize a committee to investigate the possibilities of the project.

Carey J. Harris, secretary of the club, proposed the substations as a means of providing the outlying sections of the city with quicker ambulance service. As he pointed out, the Grady hospital ambulances are required to handle all emergency calls from the hospital on Butler street. A great saving of time on emergency calls would result, he said.

A similar condition exists in the police department with reference to patrol wagons, the club was told by Civitan James L. Beavers, chief of police. He said that during his entire career as head of the police, he has advocated the establishment of police substations in the outlying sections.

In the absence of President Julian V. Boehm from the city, Vice President Herbert Porter, presided.

TWO SEABOARD PASSENGER TRAINS IN SERVICE AGAIN

Restoration to passenger service of trains 17 and 18, locals running between Atlanta and Abbeville, S. C., was announced Friday by Fred Geissler, assistant general passenger agent of the Seaboard Air Line railway.

The trains recently were discontinued to conserve power for the operation of more important trains during the present strike, according to road officials. It was further announced that the road expects to restore trains 7 and 8, between Atlanta and Birmingham, within the next few days.

Atlantans Report Success Of Summer Library Course

Mrs. J. K. Otley and Miss Tommie Barker, librarian of the Carnegie library, have just returned from Athens, where they went to give lectures before the conference of librarians which is being held in connection with the library summer school conducted by the University of Georgia. Mrs. Otley talked on "Women's Clubs and the Library Movement," and Miss Barker spoke on "Budgets and Appropriations."

This is the first time that a summer course in library work has been given in Georgia and this year it was made possible by the cooperation of the university and the Georgia library commission, being offered as one of the special courses of the annual six weeks' summer school of the university.

In addition to speaking before the library class, Mrs. Otley spoke to the whole summer school at the morning chapel. Mrs. Otley said in part: "I consider it an epoch-making event in the development of libraries in Georgia for our state university to have made instruction in library methods a part of its course of study, offered with the same recognition for credit as the other courses given."

Recognition of the part of our university will have marked effect on the professionalizing of library service."

Duncan Burnett, librarian of the University of Georgia, was resident director of the Atlanta Library school, principal of the Atlanta library, had active charge of the instruction. Others lectures were given by C. Seymour Thompson, librarian, Savannah public library; Miss Nell Reese, librarian State College of Agriculture, and Miss Fanny Taber, librarian Alabama Technical College for Women.

Miss Charlotte Templeton, secretary of the Georgia library commission, spent two weeks at the school, giving series of lectures on library administration and holding personal conferences with the librarians.

Other lectures were given by university professors, including J. H. T. McPherson on "Literature of History," A. S. Edwards on "Literature of Education," James L. Sibbey on "Community Program," Joseph S. Stewart on "Standards for the High School Library."

Registration was limited to librarians and teachers in charge of libraries. Fourteen registered for the course, representing five states as follows: Florida, one; Kentucky, one; Alabama, two; North Carolina, three; and Georgia, eight.

The school has been such a success that Mr. Stewart, superintendent of the summer school, stated that it will be offered as a permanent feature of the university summer school.

'Mid Rustic Scenes, Body of Inventor Lowered to Rest.

Beautiful and Simple Service Seals Book of Life of Dr. Alexander Graham Bell.

Baddeck, N. S., August 4.—All villagers here gathered to the peak of Beinn Breagh mountain this evening and stood in reverence at sunset while the body of Dr. Alexander Graham Bell was laid to rest after a life of 75 years in which he gave to the world the telephone and other inventions.

Over his tomb, blasted from rock, that looked down on all of eastern Nova Scotia, stood the watchtower built years ago by the inventor. Below the quiet woodland were the serene lakes on whose water Dr. Bell experimented with speed boats and fast water sleds.

The lakes were still. In the village every shop was closed and each home sent its occupants to the mountain top.

No one was left in the laboratories and workshops where Dr. Bell and his helpers busied themselves in summer time. Everyone had gone to give respect at the burial of the venerable scientist from another land.

Services at Home.

First, there were short services at the hillside home, attended only by close friends. When they ended, bronze workers employed on the estate lifted the casket which had been built in Dr. Bell's workshops out of rugged pine, and carried it to the coach, which led the cortege up to the highest tip of the mountain.

There, his six-foot frame, silhouetted against the twilight sky, stood the village parson, Rev. John MacKinnon, of the Greenwood Presbyterian church of Baddeck. Clustered about him down the slopes of the mountain were the Nova Scotians and a few who had come from the United States.

Friends of the inventor recited one of his favorites—Longfellow's "Psalm of Life."

"Tell me not, in mournful numbers, 'Life is but an empty dream.'"

Then the nineteenth psalm: "The days of our years are three-score and ten; and if by reason of strength thou shalt add years, yet it is their strength labor and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away."

And the first stanza of the "Requiem," of Robert Louis Stevenson: "Under the wide and starry sky Dig the grave and let me lie. Glad did I live, and gladly die, And I laid me down with a will."

Then, as the day departed, the body was entombed.

For one moment during the service the 13,000,000 telephone lines of the United States and Canada were silent.

The average housewife doesn't buy around the top, making the boiler doubly strong. Then, as a convenience in lifting a hot, filled boiler off the stove, be sure you get wooden handles, as these are cooler than metal ones.

For family use you will do best to buy a boiler of ten or twelve gallon size. One bigger than that is unwieldy and too large for the average home stove or gas range.

Next best, perhaps, is a tin wash boiler with a copper bottom. This is better by far than a wash boiler made entirely of tin, for this reason: On a tin boiler you usually have a coating of tin over an iron bottom. Now, if you do not get a heavy coating (and this is frequently the case), the tin is likely to wear off, and you expose the iron base of the boiler. As a result your clothes will be rusted. Be sure, therefore, to examine the base of your wash boiler. Copper is the best base.

It is best to buy a good boiler that has double seams where joined, because then you will have no leaks. Another thing to look for is a wire

AT WOMAN'S WINDOW

BY W. L. GEORGE

Not so very long ago, say round about the time of Abraham Lincoln, it was thought unadvisable and almost improper for a well-bred girl to take exercise. If she was a really nice girl she almost had to be carried about, and she could not go up steps without the assistance of a gentleman's arm. It must have been horrible to be a girl then, to be looked at like a curiosity if one grew hot. To think of the Victorian governess who told her charge that young ladies did not perspire but only gloved gives one an idea of what girls once went through. Indeed, the times have changed.

They have changed sensationally, for now we find girls practicing every form of violent sport, not only lawn tennis and golf, but running, swimming and occasionally even boxing. We all know a girl who spends seven or eight hours a day in the open air, who converts herself from pallid prettiness into brownness, sunburn, and a not altogether disagreeable coarseness. I am not attacking her, for personally I infinitely prefer the open air miss of today to the giggling, self-conscious piece of muslin who lays about in conservatories, a poor, weakly rival to the flowers which decorate it. All the same, I now and then ask myself whether excess of exercise is not as possible as excess of inaction. The sporting type of girl has a peril to face; the loss of her femininity. She easily becomes ungaily. She acquires with men a rough fellowship which deprives her of the mystery upon which her marriage is based. She becomes a little too obvious. If she knows it all is well, but if she does not, she may be surprised to see her comrades marry limper maidens. It is enough for her to recognize the danger for her to cure it. She should perhaps to exercise apply what she should apply to meals; always take a little less than she might do with.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

A RUINED MEAL.

"I don't want to accept that invitation," a friend of mine said to me one morning recently, when the position brought her a week-end invitation as we sat together on her porch.

"Why not?" I thought they had a lovely big house, but the last time we went there Mr. — found so much fault at meal times that it made me awfully uncomfortable.

"Isn't his wife a good cook?"

"Afraid she will weep."

"Not very, but that doesn't matter half so much as having to sit there and hear him criticize and ask her why she has a cold dessert on a cold day, and if she will learn not to get the roast too raw by the time they have been married ten years? And she looks as if she might weep any minute and you feel as if you wanted to get away somewhere. I think there is nothing in the world so embarrassing as being forcibly made a witness to family quarrels or criticisms."

"Why does he do it?"

"Well, I think it is partly because he is dissatisfied with her cooking and partly because he is a traveling man and wants to know that he is used to the best of food and the best service and can't get along without it, and he takes that way of impressing it on us. I don't blame him for criticizing her. She is a pretty poor cook, but I do wish, for our sake, as well as for hers, he would do it afterward."

Who hasn't had that feeling when made a party to some form of criticism or correction or quarrel?

To keep all such things as this in the background as possible is one of the hallmarks of true breeding.

Children sometimes have to be spoken firmly to in public for the sake of both child and public, but a tactful mother does all she can to minimize this public correction.

Servants should never, unless absolutely necessary, be instructed or criticized or corrected in public. It embarrasses them, makes them more likely to make mistakes, and leaves resentment. Ten words afterward are more endurable to them than one at the time of occurrence.

Give Him Peace.

There is nothing that you can give your guest in the way of food or service that will counterbalance the discomfort that comes when one is conscious of a strained, unpleasant atmosphere. Out and out quarreling is frightfully bad taste; public criticism of each other by married folks should be absolutely taboo, and even those little half jesting digs, those half humorous, half acrimonious arguments that the several years married are apt to indulge in, spoil the peaceful, pleasant atmosphere that should be the background of all true hospitality.

My husband is always slicing our dog on the rug. Ella.

No. 48—The Convenient High-Boy.

A high-boy, as the illustration shows, is nothing more nor less than a chest of drawers set upon a low stand. As conveniences and utility are at the base of all good furniture design, so considerations of convenience and utility prompted the invention of the high-boy. We have seen how the chest of drawers was developed from the chest. The high-boy marked the next step in the direction of convenience. To reach the two drawers in a chest of drawers it was necessary to stoop over. To remedy this inconvenience, some ingenious person devised the happy scheme of putting the chest of drawers on a low stand so that the lowest drawer could be reached without bending over, while the top drawer could be reached comfortably without standing on tip-toe. Thus the high-boy came into existence in the latter part of the seventeenth century.

The illustration shows the earliest and simplest type of high-boy. Before the end of the seventeenth century the high-boy developed into a far more elaborate piece of furniture, but that phase of its existence will be considered under William and Mary styles. In any form, the high-boy is an exceedingly useful and convenient as well as good-looking piece of furniture and, as it is reproduced, it might advantageously be more employed in our breaking of hearts.

OFFICE WORKERS AND REDUCTION

I do not often receive letters from girls who work in offices complaining of too much weight. The day, however, I had such an interesting letter from Miss M., who was 5 feet 3 inches high, 20 years old and who weighs 187 pounds. Miss M. would like very much to exercise but gets little opportunity to do so. For one thing, part of the distance between her home and office lies through an area that she does not like to walk, but as she should do a certain amount of exercise in order to reduce I suggested that she take exercise in her room at home, and if possible take a swift walk during part of her luncheon hour.

If Miss M. lived at home she would probably be able to have the necessary sort of diet, but like so many girls who work in offices she has to board, so she accepts the foods that are given her. As we all know, boarding house menus run to potatoes, pork ham, hominy, thick gravies and pastries, all things that increase flesh. Cool salads and dainty desserts are more costly and only to be found in expensive places.

The only thing for Miss M. to do, and for other girls who are in her position, is to eat a very little of the fattening foods. It won't make reduction as pleasant as it would be if she could sit down to a delicious salad and a little ice-cold stewed fruit. Still, Miss M. must reduce, so she must, I am afraid, make sacrifices

For one thing, part of the distance between her home and office lies through an area that she does not like to walk, but as she should do a certain amount of exercise in order to reduce I suggested that she take exercise in her room at home, and if possible take a swift walk during part of her luncheon hour.

If Miss M. lived at home she would probably be able to have the necessary sort of diet, but like so many girls who work in offices she has to board, so she accepts the foods that are given her. As we all know, boarding house menus run to potatoes, pork ham, hominy, thick gravies and pastries, all things that increase flesh. Cool salads and dainty desserts are more costly and only to be found in expensive places.

The only thing for Miss M. to do, and for other girls who are in her position, is to eat a very little of the fattening foods. It won't make reduction as pleasant as it would be if she could sit down to a delicious salad and a little ice-cold stewed fruit. Still, Miss M. must reduce, so she must, I am afraid, make sacrifices well as good-looking piece of furniture and, as it is reproduced, it might advantageously be more employed in our breaking of hearts.

"Cat's whiskers!" she gulped. "Where'd you come from, Mr. Blake?" Of all the aliases that had been his fortune to assume, this one, thrust upon him by a half-witted girl, was the most incongruous. Yet, Edward Blake had been mistaken for him by wiser ones than she, and his confined body was in the O'Kellerton vault. One forefinger went to her mouth. "S-sh!" she hissed. "I've never told a soul about Fatty Funny Breeches, so—so don't beat me."

"Ma's jaw wags" came in smothered tones from under the pillow. "Gold pencil, Fan!"

"Oh, you heard that, didn't you, Mr. Blake?" Fan shivered. "George's a cursed mean boy. Most times I'm with little Paddy I hold his mouth shut with my fingers. Once he yapped, 'Gold pencil!' and she went white like grease." Then Fanny groaned audibly. "I bet Billy Foster sent you after George and me. Billy's mad at me and George and he said you would be, too. He said, Billy did, that you'd chop off my legs and hack my head square off."

"What did you do to make him say that?" he questioned.

"Well—it ain't me as much as 'is George," she explained in a whisper. "I've most knocked the stuffin' out of that bird, but he will yell about that pencil. I'm worn out, clean through to my bones, tryin' not to tell Miss Paddy that Mike was with Milly Foster all that night, that he wasn't even in sight when Fanny Breeches was hit. Oh, me, oh, my! I'd give every thing I've got outside of George to tell 'er Mike hadn't bught to be in jail."

O'Kellerton bent forward and touched her arm, and she shivered violently. "Didn't I tell just what all of you said I should in court?" she pleaded, anxious for a word of commendation.

"Wasn't I careful not to let 'em snitch a word that'd take the blame off'n Mike?"

"Yes, yes, you were; you certainly were," he acknowledged, every nerve in his body on the jump. "But, Fanny, Foster lied when he told you I'd hurt you! You surely didn't believe it?"

"Yes, sir, I did, and how could I help it? The marks you made on me that night, when I said I wouldn't help blame Michael, stayed for weeks. Ma saw 'em, and I told 'er George did it.—And the way you went after Miss Milly, when you said she must keep Mike with 'er till morning, was something scandalous." As though the affair were nothing new, she went on, "Lordy, how you acted after you and Bill lugged that big whale of a Fatty out dead and dumped 'im in the hall!"

"Well, it's over now, child," soothed O'Kellerton, "and I regret I was so harsh.—Have you seen Billy Foster lately?"

"Yes, sir, today," she admitted, "and my Polly hates him worse'n dirt. They had an awful fight this afternoon. And every tail feather is out of my poor bird. If I hadn't bit a piece off'n Billy's arm, he'd a had George's neck twisted. You see Billy thought all the time George was dead. Until I bring him back, I had 'im hid up at Benny Brewer's house, and today I forgot about that and took 'im to ma's."

Patrick O'Kellerton laid his hand on her arm. "Poor, little mite! Come over here, next to me," he begged. "No matter what Foster said, I shan't hurt you."

"Won't ou hurt George, either?" she faltered.

"No, no, of course, I won't! There! Now, rest a minute, and don't cry any more."

Fanny collapsed against his arm. Edward Blake had been kept so constantly before her as a destroying power that it had never occurred to her that he could be other than brutal. To feel that neither she nor George need fear for their lives was, as she whispered to herself, "A blessed relief!" Finally

And Then He Changed His Mind—By Dunn

One of the artists who has just appeared at the Queen's hall, the goal of all English singers, is Miss Alice Warwick, who, until a short time ago, was a singer in the streets. One day a famous conductor heard her singing and at once recognized the perfect quality of her voice. He took her to his study and trained her thoroughly.

finger on her pulse. She lay very quiet, studying his face. "I'll wager you feel better after that sleep, young lady," he remarked.

"You made me swallow something bitter," she began.

"I surely did," he interrupted. "The state of nerver you were in, needed something, my dear."

"But it will cheer you up to know," he added, "that, while you were snoozing, your mother has been improving by leaps and strides."

"I'm very glad," she murmured, "and, oh, what about my brother, Michael?"

"He'll be here tomorrow on the jump," proceeded the doctor, smiling. "A man named Foster and his sister have been arrested and have confessed their part in the Brown murder. Of course, Edward Blake's death!"

At Patricia's involuntary gesture of repugnance, the doctor picked out a pleasant subject. "Frank Sheelin is with the district attorney, arranging things for Michael's release. All your friends are holding their breaths till you finish your nap to have a regular jollification."

There was another name on her lips, but she had not the courage to pronounce it. "John Hullworthy is Stephen. My husband is alive, and it isn't possible that he loves me," stormed her soul with a faintness that told Dr. Watkins without words what a bad time she was having.

"Listen to me, my dear," he said, "good girl. Nancy Clark has insisted for more than an hour that I wake you up. She wants to tell you that Alexander is dead. When they arrested Miss Foster, he shot himself. Nancy says it's the only real favor he's conferred on her since she married him."

After fumbling fustily in his pocket for a moment, he extended a sealed envelope. "Mr. Brewer left this note for you when he and your aunt left late this afternoon," he observed. "Here, I'll rip it open."

When he had handed her the inclosure, she was forced to dab her eyes several times before she could make out anything but blurred lines across the paper. Then she read:

"Dear Little Pal—Congratulations on our not breaking into jail! 'Forgive me for not asking your consent before I take your Aunt Addie off and marry her, but you're sound asleep, so I can't. I wouldn't have a minute to get married for the next week if I wrote what I think of Patrick O'Kellerton. Oh, my Paddy beautiful, how joyful I am for you, for all of us. Affectionately, Martin."

"Trace up, little lady," advised the doctor. "That was a miracle served up on your table, my dear. I mean your husband."

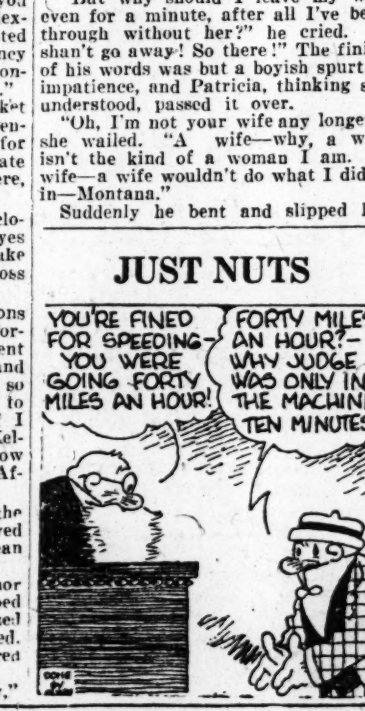

She did not hear the door open, nor did she notice that somebody tiptoed in. But Watkins, quickly recognizing the intruder and as quickly departed. When Patricia saw Patrick, she stared at him, extremely pale.

"I know what you've come to say,"

THE OLD QUESTION as to who is Dixie welterweight champion has once more jumped into the limelight. If any, the term "Dixie Welterweight Champion" means nothing—it only sounds well and actually makes some more or less impressive reading on stationery and on advertising matter, where this champion or the other appears in the ring.

Pa Stribling claims the title and so does Colonel J. W. Walker. Young Stribling and Battling Budd are the unfortunate fighters who have been handicapped with this meaningless title. From a purely personal standpoint it makes no difference to us who has the Dixie title, and if we were choosing a title we would rather be known as the "Fourth Ward Tough Boy" or the "Ninth Ward Anihilator," than the champion of anything unless it were the world.

This Dixie title (?) controversy might be settled somewhere—and it probably will be, and the contestants will be Battling Budd and Young Stribling, but you can bet the bottom dollar on your stack, that it is not going to be settled in Atlanta, according to the American Legion.

WE RECEIVED a communication today from an admirer of Young Stribling. We agree with his views that Young Stribling is a fine type of young man. We have every respect for him both in the ring and out. His battling has been according to instructions, which is another thing that we admire him for. He is not to blame for the fights, and the fighting tactics that caused him to drop from the leading box office attraction in Atlanta to one of the poorest. Under different instructions he might have been a great fighter and there is still time—but, while we do not hail from Missouri still in certain instances, we have to be shown.

THIS ADMIRER of the Maconite brags that he has never been knocked off his feet in some 40 fights. We will go further than this—Stribling will not be knocked off his feet in 40 more fights or in 140 for that matter, as long as he follows instructions implicitly. When a fighter never loses—if he is strong and has a perfect defense—such as the Central City lad boasts of—he can be battling Jack Britton or any other of the real toughsters without getting seriously hurt.

New York, August 4.—The international golf match for the Walker cup between teams of American and British players will be held August 28, instead of August 30, it was learned today.

FOWLKES SOLD TO BOSTON

Memphis, Tenn., August 4.—(Special.)—Daniel Roy, ("Hy") Fowlkes, the elongated Chick pitcher, has been sold to the Boston American, for $10,000, it was announced today by Tom Watkins, president of the Memphis club. Fowlkes will join the Red Sox at the end of the Southern league season or the post season between the Texas and Southern league champions if Memphis is in the series.

Fowlkes, who is a native Tennesseean, hailing from Dyersburg, on the Forked Deer, received his first trial with the Sox in 1917. He was sent to the Augusta club of the South Atlantic league during the seasons of 1920 and 1921 and recalled. He is about 25 years old.

Fowlkes, who towers 6 feet 6 inches, is now enjoying his best season. He has won 15 games and lost 7. Three of the defeats being in his last three starts. Eddie Holley, the Red Sox scout, recommended Fowlkes, after witnessing him pitch several games. Holley believes the big fellow will win 140 for that matter, as long as he follows instructions implicitly. When a fighter never loses—if he is strong and has a perfect defense—such as the Central City lad boasts of—he can be battling Jack Britton or any other of the real toughsters without getting seriously hurt.

STRIBLING WINS BOUT

Savannah, Ga., August 4.—(Special.)—Young Stribling, of Macon, last night demonstrated to Jimmy Conway, local welterweight boxer, that self-defense is an art, by defeating this scrapper in ten rounds.

The decision in Stribling's favor by Referee Alexander was a popular one, since Conway never landed a solid blow on the schoolboy scrapper, while the Macon flash drove left after left into the countenance of Conway.

Stribling carried the fight to Conway, and was never endangered by his boldness. His speed and footwork were too much for the local fighter, whose forte is slugging, and not in following up a flashy opponent.

Probably in only two rounds could Conway be said to have gotten an even break, these being the second and tenth, when he managed to get a few smashes through, and showed slight improvement in the infighting.

With but very little feeling out, both scrappers showed a willingness to mix up from the first going. Stribling led with a left jab, which he inserted at stated intervals and, notably to Conway's mouth, eyes and nose.

Conway retaliated with attempted body blows, which reached their mark at his ebb, and did no damage.

In the preliminary, "Baby" Stribling earned a four-round draw with Tip-top Joe, a local youngster, who outweighed the Macon lad considerably.

The semi-final brought plenty of action when Jordan Shepherd was defeated by Johnny Marlowe, of Savannah, in eight rounds of earnest efforts on the part of both to land a haymaker.

Trailing behind him at the finish were Walter Hagen, British open champion, Jim Barnes national champion and the proverbial galaxy of other stars.

He received his first set of clubs from Cui, another Apawamis caddy, who had won the Connecticut state championship. Gene was deep in the game when an auto accident halted him and for a time his life was despaired of. The doctors ordered him into the open. Cui obtained a job for Sarazen with George Sparling at the Brooklawn club. From there he graduated to a berth with the Fox Wayne country club.

HE REPRESENTED that club in open tourney in 1920 and finished thirteenth. Last year he improved his position a few steps. Last winter he won the southern open. But he was not reckoned as a star of the first magnitude then. He sought a position as professional with a western club during the 1920 season but failed to connect.

Later he became professional for the Highland club of Pittsburgh and represented that club in the recent tourneys.

THE SPORTSMAN

THE UNIVERSITY of Pennsylvania, and Syracuse university football squads will be out kicking and passing the ball on the gridiron the first day after labor day. But as yet no announcement has come from the presidents of Yale, Harvard and Princeton, working with sub-committees, alumni as to the new program for the training of this year's teams. It has been felt in some quarters that one way in which football is better occupied when training their backs during the first college semester would be to pay no attention to it until college opened. Many alumni believe, however, that it never hurt most college players to get into training along in August. It has been said that most of the boys are better occupied when training than they would be in certain of summer pursuits. Late hours never were held in very high esteem for a growing boy.

Dance Varieties.

Four complete shows will be offered today and tonight at Lee's Grand theater, five acts of high-class vaudeville, and a long program of refined and interesting motion pictures. "Dance Varieties," the feature act of the vaudeville show, is an exceptionally entertaining series of dances, mostly Russian and Oriental, introduced by a company of four talented dancers. The act is well staged and beautifully costumed. Rogers and Gregory, a black-face team, keep the house in roars of laughter with a clever skit, "Southern Levee Characters." Other good acts are Walker Herbert and Alice Binst, in an original sketch, "Opportunity," Jack Lipton, in imitations of musical instruments, and Armstrong and Nevill, in sensational wire-walking feats.

The feature of the screen program is Doris May in "Gay and Frivolous."

Resolutions endorsing an 81-2-acre tract of land bounded by Peoples, Beecher and Lawton streets, as a site for a junior high school, were adopted.

ELLIS BARRETT URGED TO RUN FOR COUNCIL

Ellis Barrett, police commissioner and well-known young lawyer, will make the race for councilman from the fifth ward in opposition to Councilman J. Allen Couch, his friends stated Friday.

Commissioner Barrett, when asked about the report, said he had not yet definitely made up his mind but had the decision to run under serious contemplation. Both the councilman and the commissioner are popular in the fifth ward, and friends of the two men agree that the race would be an interesting one.

PLAN DEVELOPMENT OF CANDLER PARK

Plans to develop Candler park, recently donated to the city by the Candler estate, and make it one of the most popular public places of recreation, were discussed Friday night at a meeting of the Ninth Ward Civic association, which met in the Highland school.

The association under the leadership of George West, its president, will get in back of the movement; to beautify the park and ascertain its needs in the way of amusements, flowers and other attractions. Committees will be appointed at a future meeting to devise plans for these improvements, it was stated.

Judge John S. Candler, chairman of the board commission, spoke briefly to members of the association on the relative importance of the park and the importance of the association in matters. Judge Candler declared that Fulton and DeKalb counties in state matters. Fulton and DeKalb counties in state matters.

He stressed the importance of harmony between Fulton and DeKalb counties in state matters. Fulton and DeKalb counties in state matters.

C. D. McKnight, prominent resident of the sixth ward, who was indignant at the last meeting of the association as candidate for council, stated that he was willing to abide by the wishes of the association. He declared that he had been placed in the race for council by the association, and if it was the association's wish that he remain, he would do so. He expressed a willingness to withdraw from the race if the association desired.

L. T. Nash, of the DeKalb county commission, the last speaker talked on the subject of co-operation between Fulton and DeKalb counties in state matters. A resolution was adopted to extend an invitation to all candidates for city and county offices to meet with the association within the next two weeks and discuss their campaign policies. The exact date of the meeting will be announced later.

The Ladd report, in addition, to recommending acceptance of the Ford project, "desires certain objections," which it said, "seem apparent," took direct issue with the proposals in the separate report of Chairman Norris, republican, Nebraska, of the committee for government ownership and operation of the Alabama plant.

For congress to adopt such a policy when Henry Ford is using it, it is unnecessary for the government to do so," the report said, "would subject congress to the just condemnation and reproach of all sober-minded people."

LEGION OFFERS SERVICES TO CITY

ment and substantial citizenship, Senator Clay said. He also sounded a note of praise for the ex-service man.

"I have a hard time keeping my temper when I see a service man brought before the courts and see the publicity given him just because he was in the service of his country, when there are hundreds of men who never saw a camp hauled before the courts every day and no great stir made over it. I also find it hard to understand how a government can do so much for the stenographers and clerks, whose work was hard enough of course, when it can do so little for the man who faced death in battle," said President Clay.

Meet Friday. A resolution was passed empowering the commander to appoint a committee to invite the ex-service men of the legislature as guests of honor at the next luncheon. On the committee R. Troutman, Fuzzy Wofford and Ewan Howell were appointed, with Commander Stephens, of Coleman Post, acting as ex-officio member. The luncheon will be held Friday at 12:30 at the Ansley hotel, with Atlanta Post No. 1, as host.

Attention was called to the meeting of the 40 Illinois legion, at degree order of the legion, at 8 o'clock Friday night in room 219 of the Central building, corner of Pryor and Alabama streets. J. R. Fitzpatrick, of the Columbus post, was present and extended an invitation to the Atlanta legionnaires to attend the Columbus meetings when in that city.

"Mister Jim," inquired Miss Liza Parks, of 16 Raspberry Alley, "is you got my man in dere?"

"Who's his name, Liza?" asked Jim Bazemore, deputy sheriff, the keeper of persons and records at the Fulton county tower.

"He's dat nigger Frank McFarland, Mister Jim. You knows dat nigger. Leastways, I reckons you does."

"Yen. He's here, Liza. Come on in and a few minutes later Liza and Frank met in the "quiz" room of the jail, which is across the hall from the office. The crowd of onlookers who had gathered outside of the jail, listened for sounds of billing and cooing. And they heard a plenty.

"Mister Jim," she said, "wreathed in smiles, 'me and bank wants to get married. I've done got de license and I've wonderin' iffen you'd marry us.'"

"Wait a minute, Liza," he said and went to have a look at the books. Next he rung the bell and when the assistant jailer came in answer, he dispatched him to the fourth floor of the jail where the Reverend William Bacon Benton, pastor of the Hulsey Missionary Baptist church for colored persons, who is enjoying a lengthy stay in the jail on charges of larceny after trust, daily dispenses words of comfort and wisdom to his itinerant flock.

"Fahson" Benton expressed a willingness, nay desire, to act in the premises. Sam Bolton, jews-harp expert, also an eager guest, offered his services and made an excellent attempt at Mendelssohn's wedding march and Liza and Frank became as one.

Then the deputy sheriff robbed Mrs. Sheriff Lowry's reception table of flowers for the bride and gave his last package of cigars to Frank. After removing with her "me" for a few minutes, Liza started home to prepare him the first supper to be cooked by his wife.

Negro Preacher, Bible in Pockets, Held as Burglar

Sam Williams, a negro, who gave his age as 17 years, was taken into custody Friday night by detectives after he is said to have attempted entering the residence of Mrs. C. M. Jarvis, 48-50 Garnett street.

When searched at the police station two Bibles and a license purported to have been issued by the Baptist church at Swainsboro, Ga., ordaining Williams as a preacher, were removed from his pockets. The negro admitted to officers that he was a preacher. Williams was overpowered by C. M. Moss, C. W. Cunningham and Jack Barron, who reside at the Jarvis home. He had climbed to the second story and was on the porch in his bare feet when the three young men surprised him.

MINORITY REPORT URGES FORD BID

Washington, August 4.—A minority report from the agriculture committee, urging acceptance of Henry Ford's offer for the war built government nitrate plant and its water power project, was introduced in the senate today.

The report, which was introduced by Senator Ladd, republican, North Dakota, in behalf of himself and republican members of the committee, was a minority report, as the committee favors that course.

The report was presented without comment in the senate and with the two other reports from the committee awaits senate action.

The Ladd report, in addition, to recommending acceptance of the Ford project, "desires certain objections," which it said, "seem apparent," took direct issue with the proposals in the separate report of Chairman Norris, republican, Nebraska, of the committee for government ownership and operation of the Alabama plant.

For congress to adopt such a policy when Henry Ford is using it, it is unnecessary for the government to do so," the report said, "would subject congress to the just condemnation and reproach of all sober-minded people."

5,000 REPORTED DEAD IN TYPHOON

Hongkong, August 4.—(By the Associated Press).—Five thousand lives are believed to have been lost in the typhoon which last Wednesday devastated Swatow, 250 miles northwest of here.

A resolution was passed empowering the commander to appoint a committee to invite the ex-service men of the legislature as guests of honor at the next luncheon. On the committee R. Fitzpatrick, of the Columbus post, was present and extended an invitation to the Atlanta legionnaires to attend the Columbus meetings when in that city.

"Mister Jim," inquired Miss Liza Parks, of 16 Raspberry Alley, "is you got my man in dere?"

"Who's his name, Liza?" asked Jim Bazemore, deputy sheriff, the keeper of persons and records at the Fulton county tower.

"He's dat nigger Frank McFarland, Mister Jim. You knows dat nigger. Leastways, I reckons you does."

"Yen. He's here, Liza. Come on in and a few minutes later Liza and Frank met in the "quiz" room of the jail, which is across the hall from the office. The crowd of onlookers who had gathered outside of the jail, listened for sounds of billing and cooing. And they heard a plenty.

"Mister Jim," she said, "wreathed in smiles, 'me and bank wants to get married. I've done got de license and I've wonderin' iffen you'd marry us.'"

"Wait a minute, Liza," he said and went to have a look at the books. Next he rung the bell and when the assistant jailer came in answer, he dispatched him to the fourth floor of the jail where the Reverend William Bacon Benton, pastor of the Hulsey Missionary Baptist church for colored persons, who is enjoying a lengthy stay in the jail on charges of larceny after trust, daily dispenses words of comfort and wisdom to his itinerant flock.

"Fahson" Benton expressed a willingness, nay desire, to act in the premises. Sam Bolton, jews-harp expert, also an eager guest, offered his services and made an excellent attempt at Mendelssohn's wedding march and Liza and Frank became as one.

Then the deputy sheriff robbed Mrs. Sheriff Lowry's reception table of flowers for the bride and gave his last package of cigars to Frank. After removing with her "me" for a few minutes, Liza started home to prepare him the first supper to be cooked by his wife.

The Ladd report, in addition, to recommending acceptance of the Ford project, "desires certain objections," which it said, "seem apparent," took direct issue with the proposals in the separate report of Chairman Norris, republican, Nebraska, of the committee for government ownership and operation of the Alabama plant.

For congress to adopt such a policy when Henry Ford is using it, it is unnecessary for the government to do so," the report said, "would subject congress to the just condemnation and reproach of all sober-minded people."
